A CHANGE AT THE BOSTON BAZAR.
Messrs. L. S. Gates & Co. would inform the public that they are now going out of the dry goods business and intend to devote their time to the sewing machine business exclusively, and will sell their entire stock of dry goods, notions and carpets at cost. There has never been any misrepresentation of selling goods at cost heretofore, and the public may be assured that this is no humbug, but that they mean just what they say. They recommend the public to call early and secure bargains before the stock is broken.

In this issue of THE ARGUS will be found the advertisement of the Northwesttern Business College and Art School of Naperville, this state. Mr. J. Geo. Cross, well known in educational circles, is president of this institution, and parents will find it to their advantage to correspond with him. A thorough business and art course is taught.

Wants to Change the Language.
When our city council makes the mayor a member of the city council, and a law of this state declares that it shall take three-fourths of all the members of the city council authorized by law to be elected to dispose of an act of the mayor, the organ of the B. B.'s insists on changing the language so that it will read two-thirds of all the aldermen authorized by law to be elected. The organ of the B. B.'s is "doomed stupid."

ceived at the Hong Kong tea store. dkw2m

POLICE COURT.
Before E. C. Cropper, Police Magistrate.
Yesterday afternoon Policeman Brennan arrested an Irish bully from St. Louis named Lawrence M. Murphy, for being drunk and fighting with Cleo Bladshaw.
He was taken before the magistrate but was so drunk and noisy that he was sent to jail until he was sober. This morning he was fined $10 and costs. He had $6.55, which the magistrate appropriated. He was very drunk and incoherent, saying he would have his money back again or know the reason why. The magistrate said he would send him to work on the streets for the balance of the fine—and hoped it would teach him to be more civil in future.

Some weeks ago the Rock Island AR-GUS (Dem.), suggested the name of Hon.
John B. Hawley, of that city, as the Republican candidate for the governorship.
Several papers in northern Illinois took up the matter, speaking in highly favorable terms of Mr. Hawley. Now, however, comes the Rock Island Union and says Mr. Hawley is not a candidate for the office, and has not authorized the presentation of his name. The convention and the party might go further and fare worse than to take Mr. Hawley.—Poria Transcript.

The Union has no authority for its statement. That paper is not a friend of Mr. Hawley, or of Mr. Hawley's friends, and would rather take a dose of quinine than see Hawley governor. THE ARGUS does not expect to support Mr. Hawley, should he be nominated; it only publishes the fact that Mr. Hawley's friends propose to present his name for the position. Mr.
Hawley may say he is not a candidate, if he likes. That is the course generally taken, now, by people who want an office.
THE ARGUS suggested what was a fact then, and what is a fact now, viz: that Mr.
Hawley's friends talk of presenting his name as a candidate for governor at the next election.

Sudden Death of Capt. Tom Rhodes.
At 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, August 4, Capt. Thomas B. Rhodes died at his rooms at the Everett Hotel, in St.
Louis. His health had been poor for a few years past, but still he was able, all the time, to attend to business. On the morning of his death he ate his usual breakfast, with his wife, at the public table, after which he went to his room. In a few moments he said he did not feel well and he would lie down for awhile. He laid down upon the bed in his room, and Mrs. Rhodes started to get something for him, when he said, "Ma I am afraid I am going to die." Mrs. Rhodes immediately returned to his side and he was dead!

Capt. Rhodes was well known in every river town from St. Louis to St. Paul. He and Capt. James Ward were the only presidents of the old Northern Line Co.— Capt. Ward being the first president.

Tom Rhodes was as familiar a name to all business men in the river towns as any man in the land, and his word was always as good as his bond. He was an upright, honorable, first-class business man, and will be much missed by a great many people. His age was about 52. His home was at Savanna, above us, on the river, and his remains will pass through this city to-morrow morning, for Savanna, accompanied by his widow and his son. Capt.
John Rhodes, his brother, has been appointed to meet them at Savanna.

Salarygrabber Randall's Game of Bluff.

Mr. Sam, Salarygrabber Randall of Pa. is playing a nice little game of bluff, to win the speakership of the next house of representatives. He has recently caused telegrams to be sent off to all the newspapers declaring that he has 100 members pledged to his support. There is not one word of truth in the assertion. Salarygrabber Randall cannot carry all the Democratic members in his own state, and he has not 20 members outside of his state pledged to his support. His little game of bluff is fully understood, and is estimated for just exactly what it is worth.

Of course the Republicans are anxious that some salarygrabber shall be chosen speaker of a Democratic house, and all their papers eagerly grab at Randall's bragging, telegram and give it prominence in their columns. That is easily enough understood. Republican newspapers also put in a sort of word of encouragement for Salarygrabber Randall, once in awhile, thus showing which way the wind blows in their quarter. Here is one such from the Inter-Ocean of yesterday as follows:

Sam Randall's friends have carefully considered him to any less or principle in entering the speakership's chamber. He is making the run, as he modestly states, solely on his personal qualifications for the position.

It is easy enough to perceive why Republicans and Republican newspapers should desire that the Democrats should choose a salarygrabber, but how on earth any sensible Democrat or Democratic newspaper can be so stupid and blind as to encourage the candidacy of such men as "Fernandynud" or Salarygrabber Randall is what no fellow can find out.

The influence that the choice of speaker will have upon the next presidential election is past calculation, and the power the occupant of the speaker's chair will have in shaping committees and legislation had better be considered by our new members before they commit themselves to any salarygrabber for speaker.

By all odds, the best man for the place is Hon. S. C. Cox, of New York, which the west wants to give New York the next candidate for president—and get whipped.

Mr. Cox is absolutely invulnerable from attacks by the Republicans; he will give better satisfaction to the farmers and independents than any other man; his private character is without a blemish; his integrity cannot be impeached or doubted; his sixteen years' experience in congress has made him one of the very best parliamentarians in that body, and his personal popularity with the Republicans as well as the Democrats make him peculiarly acceptable to all. From what we hear we should say that his chances for the speakership are better than those of any other man, and we think the Democrats will make a great mistake if they elect any other man.

The Burlington Gazette charges that the United States steamer Montana was brought down from St. Paul to Rock Island for the sole purpose of giving Congressman Hawley and Col. Maconab a free excursion ride to Montrose, the cost to the government of said free ride being several thousand dollars.—Daw Dem.

The Gazette is unnecessarily ignorant or malicious. The steamer Montana is owned, officered, provisioned and run by the United States government, in the Mississippi river improvement service, and goes wherever she is ordered by Col. Maconab, who has charge of that service in the upper river. Her officers and crew are paid a salary, and the boat must be kept in the service during the season wherever needed. As far as expense is concerned, the costs the United States just as much lying at the dock as when running on the river.

On the 29th ult., Col. Maconab started on a business trip to the lower rapids, and Gen. Henderson, our member of congress, (not Hawley) was invited to go along as he desired to become familiar with the details of the river improvement work in order to try and benefit that interest in congress next winter. Is there anything wrong in that? It certainly did not cost the United States a cent more because Congressman Henderson went along.

The boat returned to this city, Col. Maconab's head-quarters, on Monday forenoon, having, during an absence of three working days, removed eight dangerous snags from the river, besides doing considerable other work.

On Tuesday the boat, with Col. Maconab on board, left for St. Paul. Col. Maconab stopped at Rapids City and inspected the work now being done on what is called the St. Louis chain of rocks, under charge of Major Hoffman. He then proceeded up the river, and will probably be absent about two weeks. The Montana will proceed immediately to Pig's Eye bar, three miles below St. Paul, and one of the most dangerous bars on the river, and commenced the work of removing that bar from the river. It is not thought that the boat will be here again until about November.

Some Evidence of Repentance.
Justice Pinkley, now that THE ARGUS has posted him in regard to how much he was entitled to receive as one of the town auditing board, says he is willing to pay back into the town treasury the amount which he has taken illegally at each meeting of the town board, if Sup'r Krell calls on him for it. It is not very likely that Krell will do any such thing, for Krell helped vote it to himself as well as to Pinkley and the other members.
Pinkley pretends to be a conscientious member of the Methodist church. He, and Krell, and Cropper, and Beardsley, know that they have money in their pocket which belongs to the people. It is their duty to return it to the people's treasury. They know, too, that they have allowed other and enormous bills for which there is no authority of law for allowing.
What are they going to do about it?

—Willie Boyle has been decided insane and will be taken to Jacksonville. No more amiable or kind hearted young man can be found than Willie Boyle, but he has been a regular and hard drinker from a boy. We very much hope he may be cured, but we doubt it. He is 32 years old.

Dr. Leonard Bacon on the Result of the Beecher Trial.

The New York Tribune contains a letter from the venerable Congregational theologian, Rev. Dr. Leonard Bacon, of the theological department of Yale College, in reply to certain strictures, by a friend, on his course toward Plymouth church and Henry Ward Beecher. Inasmuch as it was a letter from Dr. Bacon that hastened the Tilton-Beecher scandal case to its conclusion, his opinion as regards the result of the trial has a peculiar interest. We reproduce the closing part of Dr. Bacon's letter, as follows:

There is one point on which my friend does not challenge me to speak, but on which, in present circumstances, I can hardly be silent. Hot partisans on both sides will charge me with evading the real issue, if I do not explicitly declare what my position is on the question whether Mr. Beecher is guilty of the charge preferred against him by the firm of Moulton and Tilton.

The man who is charged with an infamous offense and denies the charge may well be silent. He may be silent, but he will not be silent. Messrs. Moulton and Tilton having slowly accumulated through a period of three or four years their material of war, and having had the help of General Benjamin F. Butler in devising the plan of the campaign, made their attempt. They had the power of the state to compel the attendance of witnesses, and to make them testify. They had professional advocates of the most distinguished ability to examine and cross-examine witnesses, to marshal their evidence, and to argue for them. Their side had the first word of statement to the jury and the last. It is difficult to say what advantages they could have had which they had not. But after a protracted trial—the most protracted, I believe, save one in the history of litigation—the result is, on our part, a failure. They tried to prove Mr. Beecher guilty of a definite offense, and they have not succeeded. They undertook to do, therefore, stands just where he stood at his first denial of the charge. The attempt to prove him guilty having failed, the legal and common-sense presumption of his innocence remains intact.

I have no right to demand—not has any man a right to demand—that he shall possively prove his innocence. The burden of proof rests on those who accuse him.
Our duty is to wait for proof of his innocence, and to report that he is innocent.

Should he be told that there are other charges rest on the sole authority of Mr.
Henry C. Bowen, who, however reluctant he has expressly withdrawn them—
charges rest on the sole authority of Mr.
Henry C. Bowen, who, however reluctant
he has expressly withdrawn them—

It is a member of Plymouth church still insists, even by nod and wink, or by "expressive silence," that his allegations —distinctly rehearsed in a document appended to the "tripartite agreement," and by him withdrawn—are nevertheless true (as Gallies is reported to have said, brushing the dust from his knees after humbly withdrawing his allegations about the earth's motion, "Nevertheless it moves"), then it is for him to prove what he cannot deny that he has said, or else to pass up to a serious account, those other charges—overshadowed for a year by the one specific charge which Messrs.
Moulton and Tilton undertook to prove—are not yet disposed of. The unpleasant fact, notwithstanding the failure of the plaintiff in the late trial, there are many (and not a few) who will not feel that after all, Mr. Beecher has not been completely vindicated, is better explained by the known existence of these other charges and the policy of silence in regard to them than by anything else.
Let us hope that there is a good time coming when Mr. Bowen shall have made open and credible profession that, in his conviction, the allegations which, as made by him, and rehearsed in Tilton's too famous letter, are untrue. That will be the best time for a triumphal reception in Brooklyn. "May I have the honor to see you?"

LEONARD BACON.

wear, and all kinds of Gent's Furnishing Goods in endless variety, at Loeb's.

Death of Judge Norton.
From the Chicago Journal, 4th.
Hon. Jesse O. Norton died last night at his residence on Greenwood avenue, Hyde Park, of a sudden attack of apoplexy. He had suffered during many weeks past.
The people of the whole state will be saddened by this intelligence, for the genial character as well as the learning and integrity of the departed had given him a warm place in the hearts of the people of the entire state of Illinois.

Judge Norton was born in Bennington, Vt., in 1812, was educated at Yale, came west, went to Missouri, finally settled in Joliet, Will county, where his legal attainments attracted attention, and gave him a high standing in his profession. In 1847 he was elected a member of the constitutional convention, and took a bold and manly stand against the proposition to exclude negroes from the state. In 1850 he was elected to the legislature, and took a leading part in the deliberations of that body. In 1852 he was elected to the senate, and re-elected in 1854. He made an eloquent speech in the Nebraska bill, for which he received a high compliment from Senator Douglas. He also assisted materially in the movement which gave about $2,000,000 worth of swamp lands to the state, and favored the appropriation of $5,000,000 for the deepening of the Illinois and Michigan canal, but the measure was lost in the senate. In 1857 he was elected Judge of the circuit court, in which position he served until the summer of 1861. He declined a re-election.

It will be remembered that it was before him that the celebrated Burch divorce case was tried in DuPage county. While presiding he displayed a very high order of intellect. In 1862 he was elected to the legislature, and was elected to congress by President Johnson United States district attorney for Northern Illinois, he came to Chicago and held that office until 1868, when he entered into a law partnership with Senator Doolittle, the firm being Doolittle & Norton, with Mr. Frank J.
Chase and J. B. Doolittle, Jr., as juniors.
The fire dissolved the partnership. Mayor Colvin appointed Judge Norton corporation counsel, a position which he filled until failing induced him to resign.

He subsequently resumed the active dis-ties of his profession, which he followed up to the time of his last illness. At the bar, as a citizen and as a man, Judge Norton ranked among the first. He easily surrounded himself by his affectionate nature with many firm friends, and his action in the divorce case, and his abilities in respect of all men. Judge Norton leaves a widow and three daughters.

MOLINE.

No police cases yesterday. It looks like the calm after the storm.

Church service to-night in the basement of the Methodist church. All are invited.

Twenty-six lamps are at present in use in Moline. Twenty-four more are to be put in soon, probably.

And now they say that the dilapidated corner of Holmstrum's, at Wells and Lynde streets, is to be a saloon.

Justice Mapes left yesterday for Warren county, to be absent a few days. Police Magistrate Swander officiates in his absence.

WANTED.—1,000 pigeons by the Moline Gun Club, at 25 cents a pair. Apply to John A. Healy, Dwight Benjamin's stand, Moline.

Rev. D. C. Barnard left yesterday for a short visit to Wisconsin. During his absence, Rev. D. E. Jones, of Davenport, will officiate as pastor at the Congregational church.

The necessity for keeping our alleys and yards cleanly should need no urging, especially at this season of the year. Everyone should be particularly careful in this respect.

D. Tyrell is trimming the shade trees per order of the city authorities. Those who fail to do the work themselves will have it neatly executed by Tyrell, which means at the expense of dilatory parties.

John A. Healey, first; Joo. A. Fish, second; Samuel Porter, third, was the winner of the pigeon shooting yesterday. No general match took place owing to lack of birds. It is probable that one will occur some day this week.

The fifth anniversary of the Freja Society took place yesterday. Brooks's Grove was alive with the Swede element during the day and at night a ball at Freja Hall made up the festivities for the occasion.
Everything passed off pleasantly.

The Catholic church is to be enlarged and the grounds beautified. The congregation has rapidly augmented since Father Greve assumed the charge, and his efforts for the advancement of Catholicism seem to meet with great success. Father Greve is a young priest but is a man whose earnestness of purpose and genuine religion have won the confidence of his parishioners. Under his watchful care the church is bound to prosper.

Douglas Barker, a little son of L. H.
Barker, is missing. He has been absent from home since Tuesday noon. It is feared he has gone west in quest of adventure. He has been devoted to the yellow-covered style of literature so popular with boys at the present day, and has had his mind so wrought upon that he has no doubt determined to become a hero himself. His parents are very much worried about him, and will be glad to receive any information relative to his whereabouts.
The character of young Barker was No. 1 here among all who knew him.

NOTES HERE AND THERE.
—Mr. James Broderick is having the Shamrock House neatly repaired.

—That frog pond on Bengtson's corner has a rival on Orleans street, between Broadway and Dock streets.

—Hans Christian Anderson, the distinguished Danish poet and novelist, died at Copenhagen, on the 4th, aged 70 years.

—A big excursion is expected here from Tiskilwa and vicinity, on the 26th. Five hundred diners have been engaged at the Harper House.

—It is not only true that the race of ex-presidents is now extinct, but also of presidents; that is, of those worthy of the name—Chicago Times.

—The colored people of this city, Moline and Davenport, held a picnic in Brooks's grove to-day. They had a large crowd, and a good time.

—Wm. Hayden is still in jail. He will be held until the boy Boston saw the mulatto who committed the outrage, comes to this side and takes a look at him.

—Our county judge, not having anything in the judicial line to-day converted his office into a carpenter shop—and forgot to clean up after finishing his job.

—The roof of the engine room at the water works is in a very leaky condition, and Mayor Davenport, the only furrier in town, has engaged Mr. Cramer, the engineer, to have it repaired immediately.

—Frederick Wender, a poor, dissipated German, 60 years old, committed suicide at his home in Wheatland, Clinton county, Iowa, by shooting himself through the heart. He leaves a wife and four grown sons.

—Capt. Dave Hillier is entitled to the credit of building the first sidewalk on Commerce street. It is a good firm plank walk and the only one on that street. It is hoped that other residents will follow his good example.

—That letter of Mrs. Beecher to an Iowa lecture agent was one thing, and that is that Henry shall not pour out sentimental slush about "Caves of Oblivion," "Moral Niagara," etc., on paper—not if she can keep her ink and away from him.

—A "solved dove" in Muncie, Ind., having been sent to prison, has put a number of the nicest young men of that city on the ragged edge by exposing their connection with her. She served them exactly right, and they have left the city numerous, and are dwelling elsewhere in "caves of glom."

—Every boy should learn some kind of trade, and learn it thoroughly and be equal to the best workman in it. In case of misfortune he will not then be reduced to a common, unskilled day laborer, but will find his trade the means of supporting him creditably and independently, provided he has habits of temperance, industry and frugality.

—The death of Andy Johnson leaves no ex-president nor vice-president among the living.—Des Moines Register. Let's see; Colfax died of an aggravated attack of Credit Moniteur, he was really a failure.
Oh yes; increased postage killed Haulla, and the Register is quite right in their more dead than Andrew Johnson.—Chicago Times.

—A sensible young lady, daughter of one of our wealthiest citizens, being determined to know everything necessary for a good house-keeper to know, and having mastered the secrets of the kitchen, is now taking lessons of Miss Anderson, in the art of dress making. Her example ought to be followed by many other young ladies. Fortune is a fickle jade, and inable to throw people at any time—but if a young lady is thoroughly acquainted with the mysteries of the needle as well as the palor, and knows how to make her own clothes, she is worth her weight in gold, whether she has a fortune or not. And a very important consideration to the wealthy lady is that her servants can not fool her then, for she knows when her work is well done nor can her dress maker pass work upon her which is not properly done, for she is posted in that business too. It is better to know these things than how to bang the piano, or crochet slippers, and paint butterflies.

—Mr. Richard Mansell, of Rock Island, Ill., agrees with Prof. Tice that
